★ FAN CLUB ★

Dear Member,

I Haven't stopped Laughing From all those great knock-knocks, jokes and riddles you sent in to me! I've included a few of my Favorites in this newsletter. Try them out on your family and friends and watch them Laugh too!

What do you like to do best?

My friends and I like to make a rhythm band. We bang pot lids together and rub spoons across strainers. It's noisy, but it's Fun!

You could draw a picture of me doing something that you like to do, and send it to me. Don't forget to include your name, age and address. Maybe you'll see your picture in our next newsletter!

I Hope you enjoy all this good stuff!

your Friend,
Lamb Chop

Dear Lamb Chop,
 I know a magic trick
 I can make a calculator say hello.

Press the zero button.
 Then you press two sevens.
 Then you press three.
 Then press four.
 Turn it upside down and
 it spells hello!

The Goose and the Golden Eggs

There was an old farmer in Kalamazoo
Who was starving and didn't know what to do—
Until a stranger arrived at the farm,
Carrying a goose under his arm.

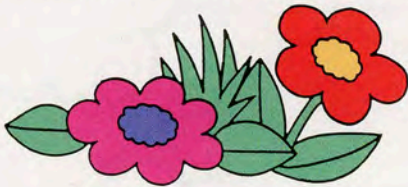

"Take care of my goose,"
he said, "and friend,
The goose will take care
of you, in the end."
And before the next day
was another hour old,
The goose laid an egg that
was made of gold.

All that week and the next, I'm told
The goose laid eggs that were made of gold.
The farmer sold the eggs, made lots of dough.
He became rich, but then, you know...
He said, "I really think it's a crime
To have to make money one egg at a time.
That silly old goose, she makes me sore!
I'll bet in her belly, she has dozens more!"

So the farmer grabbed it by the legs,
And killed the goose with the golden eggs.
There were none inside the goose, of course,
Which filled the farmer with remorse.
Soon his money was gone, and he was needy.
See what you get for being greedy?

PARENT'S CORNER

Here are some tips to help your child become a lover of books: Make sure there is a quiet place for the youngster to read, and a time set aside for reading, when the t.v. is turned off. Find books that relate to your youngster's interests: if he or she likes sports or magic, find stories all about that favorite subject. Rich language skills are a terrific base for reading. Allow your children to see you reading— not only books and newspapers, but looking for numbers in a telephone book, following recipes, etc. That's how kids come to understand the importance of reading in everyday life. When your child sound out all of the hard words, Don't ever insist that your child stop and ask, "What do you think is going to happen next?" Read and re-read best-loved books. This builds confidence as well as skills.

JOIN-A-COIN

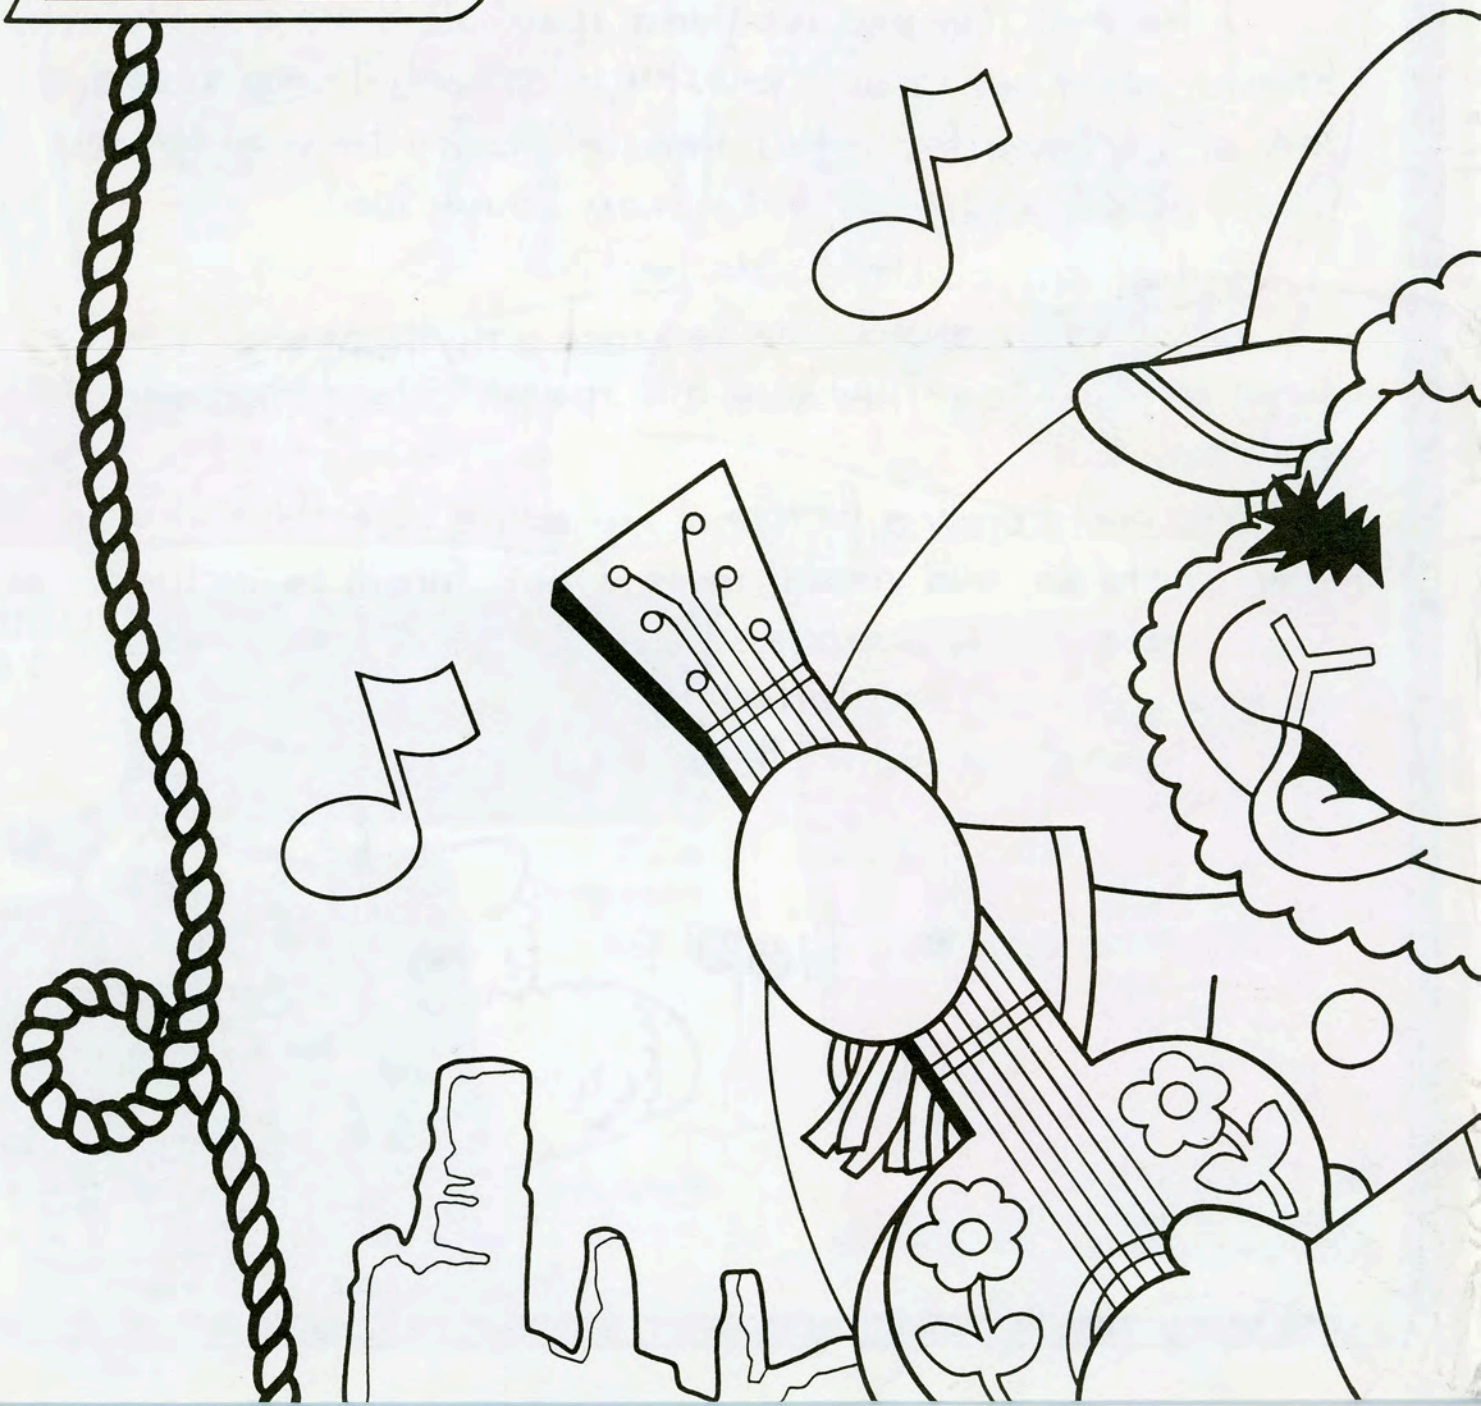

To play this game, first you have to make your own Join-a-Coin game board. It's easy. Just draw a very large square. Inside the square draw four lines up and down and four lines side to side- all evenly spaced. You now have 25 boxes inside your big square, and you're ready to play Join-a-Coin!

Gather a pile of pennies for yourself and a pile of nickles for a friend. First you get to put one of your coins in a box, then the other player puts one of his or her coins in another box. You take turns putting down coins, one at a time, until one of the players has five coins in a row. It doesn't matter whether the row is vertical (up and down), horizontal (across), or on the diagonal - if you've joined five of your coins in a row, you're the champ!
